"Mark Nowakowski's Storm Bells Viola Concerto has enormous power and intensity. He
-Stanley Konopka, Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, Assistant Principal Viola.

" Mark Nowakowski's mus Salvum fac Servum work with my Composers Choir, the
-Daniel Shaw, Conductor, The Composers Choir

"Mark's unique compositional language stems from his exhaustive consideration of aesthetics. His mus
-Erik Peterson, The Voxare Quartet

- A new youtube video for O Pieknosci Niestworzona for chorus and chamber orchestra, premiered in Poland with Projekt Mozart 2012

- Mark will be the composer in residence for the 2012 edition of the Mozart2003 festival this summer in Poland. This will feature the world premiere of his forthcoming work O Beauty Uncreated for Choir and Orchestra. The festival will take place in August, with dates to be announced...

- The Kronos Quartet will premiere String Quartet #2: Grandfather Songs on July 22nd at the Festival of Polish Music in Krakow!

- My piece Learning to Stand (again) now released as a part of the first album from FiveOne Experimental Orchestra. Click here to browse and download the album.

- Update - My Fall 2009 article for Sacred Music Journal may now be downloaded - along with the entire wonderful issue --as a free pdf document at musicasacra.com

- New article at NewMusicBox online magazine!

- I recently had an article published in Sacred Music journal, regarding online strategies for modern composers of sacred Music. Sacred Music is the oldest continually published music journal in the US, and is run by the incredible (and incredibly resourceful!) Church Music Association of America. Please check out their numerous (and free!) online musical resources...

- Click here for free downloads of all CMNH Commission Projects..

- Video excerpt of "Blood, Forgotten" now available on Youtube.

- An interview on Cleveland Public Radio with composers Mark Nowakowski, Lexi Bryant, and Michael Bratt. (Scroll to the 32:30 mark of the show for our interview.)

Please feel free to contact me for more information.